NOTE.

For the purposes of the following List, any thing in the form of dialogue or of verse has been treated as a Play or a Poem; and though, in other respects, a degree of accuracy has been aimed at, in cases of doubt names and titles have been put in hoping to elicit corrections and suggestions.

The compiler may, should the material at his command at any time seem to warrant it, print a more comprehensive catalogue of his collection, with full titles and collations of all the more important articles, and with, perhaps, brief notices of the writers. In this view, any information relating to the authors, or to their several publications, or that may in any wise contribute towards the completeness of such a compilation, will be thankfully received by him.
